ALUMNI PROFILE – LANE DEINES

“I loved how the department is student-focused. Rather than being seen as a ‘number,’ I was Lane and the professors knew my strengths and weaknesses. With this knowledge, the professors were able to build me into a professional and the person that I am today,” said Lane Deines, a 2016 UNK graduate and Kearney native.

Deines is now completing his master’s degree in School Psychology at UNK. “The psychology department prepared me for graduate school in many ways. First, the program prepared me to be able to meet deadlines and plan ahead for assignments and projects. Second, the program provided me a plethora of knowledge regarding research and statistics. I was even able to conduct a research study. Additionally, the program helped me to understand who I was as a person and what skills I have to be able to influence those I work with.”
